

CAPELLA salon

Twelve years ago, when Shai and Nicole Amiel became newowners (and hair apparent) of Capella Salon in Studio City; their promise was to provide unparalleled quality services with a trusted focus on identifying and accommodating the wants, needs and individuality of each unique client. To watch their talented and friendly team efficiently and consistently create brilliant results for a full house sans attitude, hurries or hassles was a first. This is a royal, relaxed experience. They even make sure to offer you passion fruit ice tea or a glass of champagne.

Likely this is why Capella always gets top customer reviews and accolades including being named L.A.'s Number One Salon by "The Los Angeles Times." Recently, Capella moved, almost literally, across the street to its brand new location on Ventura at Coldwater.

"We offer complete full service cut and color with cutting edge technologies for women and men," Shai and Nicole said. "We have a curly hair department, organic hair color, extensions, permanent wave and relaxers and a large team of very talented hairdressers. To ensure our clients get the best results possible, we use well known high end hair care products. Our popular skincare department offers services from facials to waxing to make-up and our exclusive esthetician was among the first to offer eyelash extensions in the Valley.

"What we were missing," the Amiels relay, "was enough space to meet our growing demand.

So we decided to move to give our clients an even better experience and our stylists a more comfortable workspace. It's open, it's urban, unpretentious and there's plenty of parking. Clients come in and they're loving it and they leave loving their hair. What else is there?"
